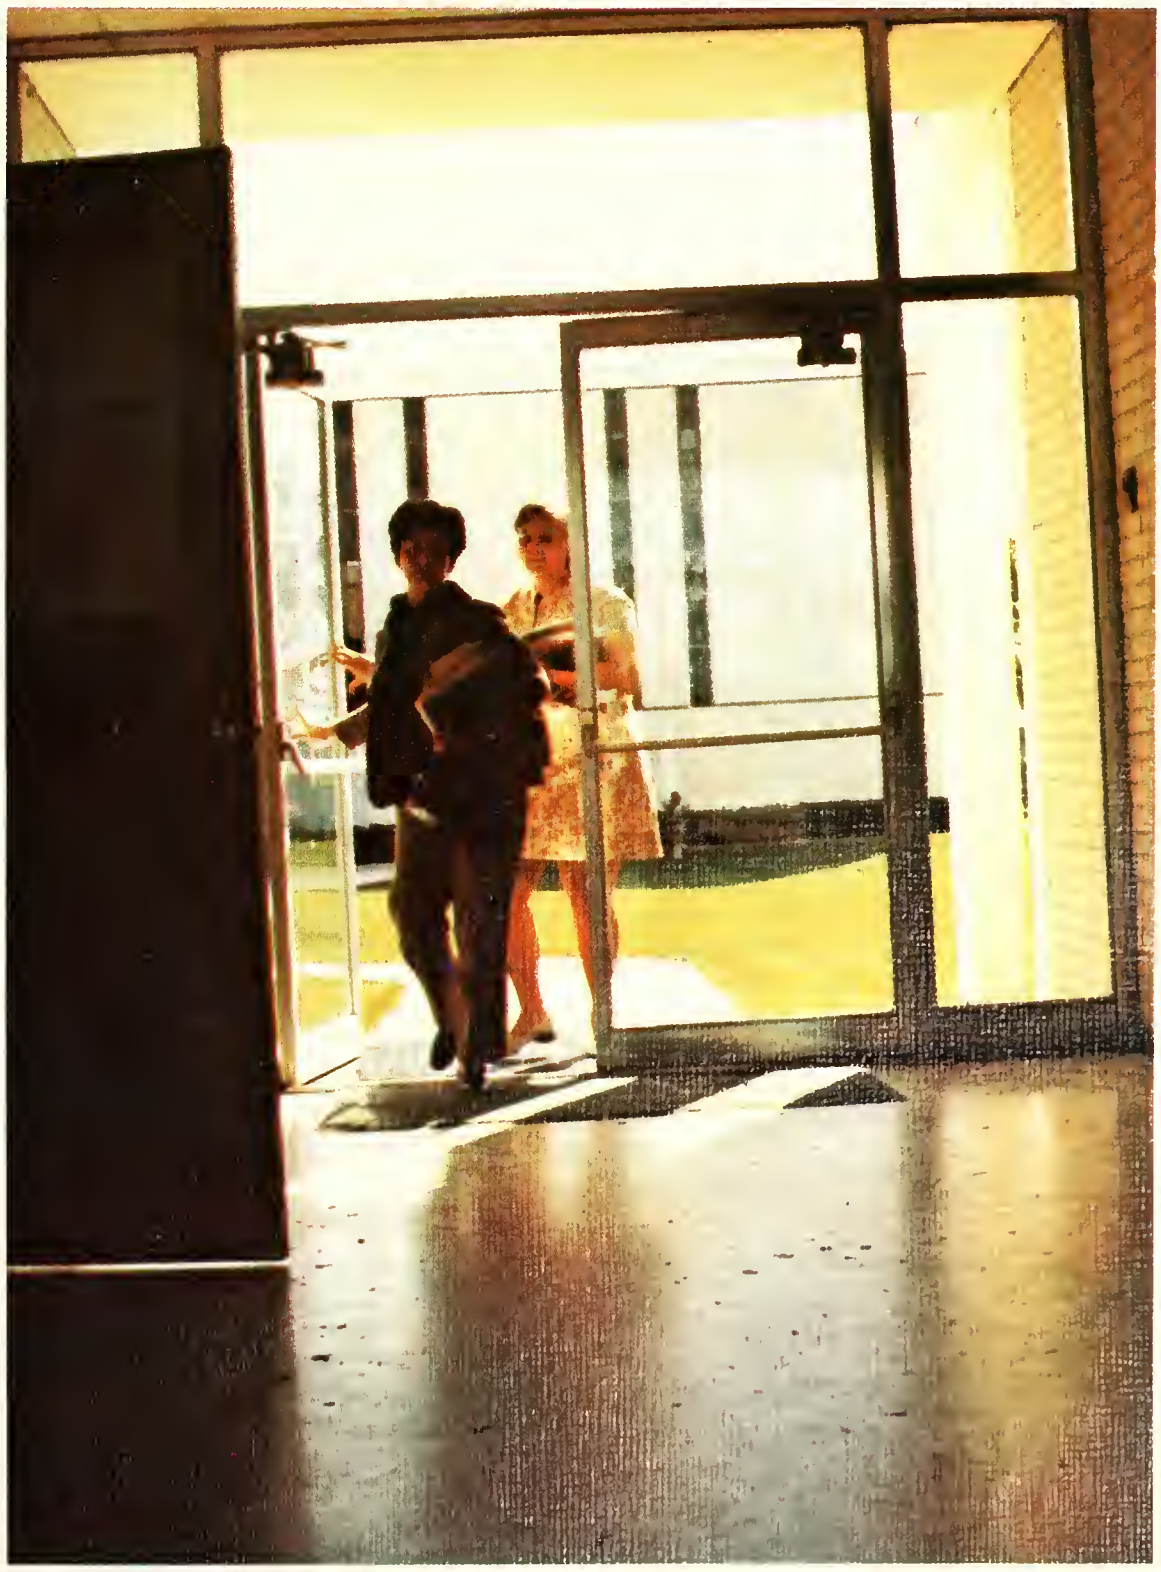
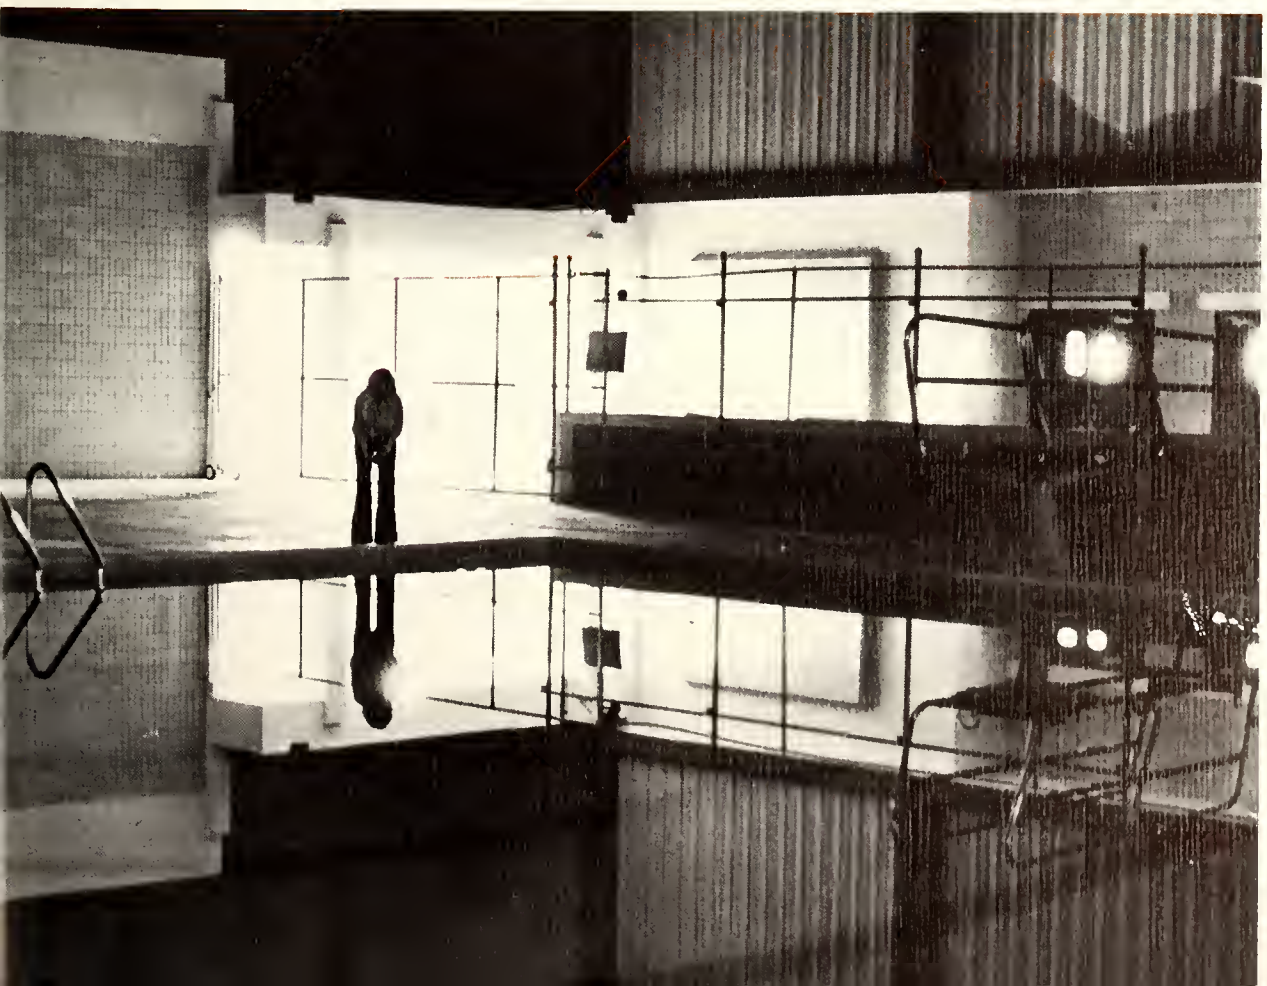
The Skeleton

Saint Leo College serves as a framework which opens many doors. It provides opportunities to give variety and spice to life. Its skeleton is made up of a hundred acre college with a mixture of old and new in architecture.

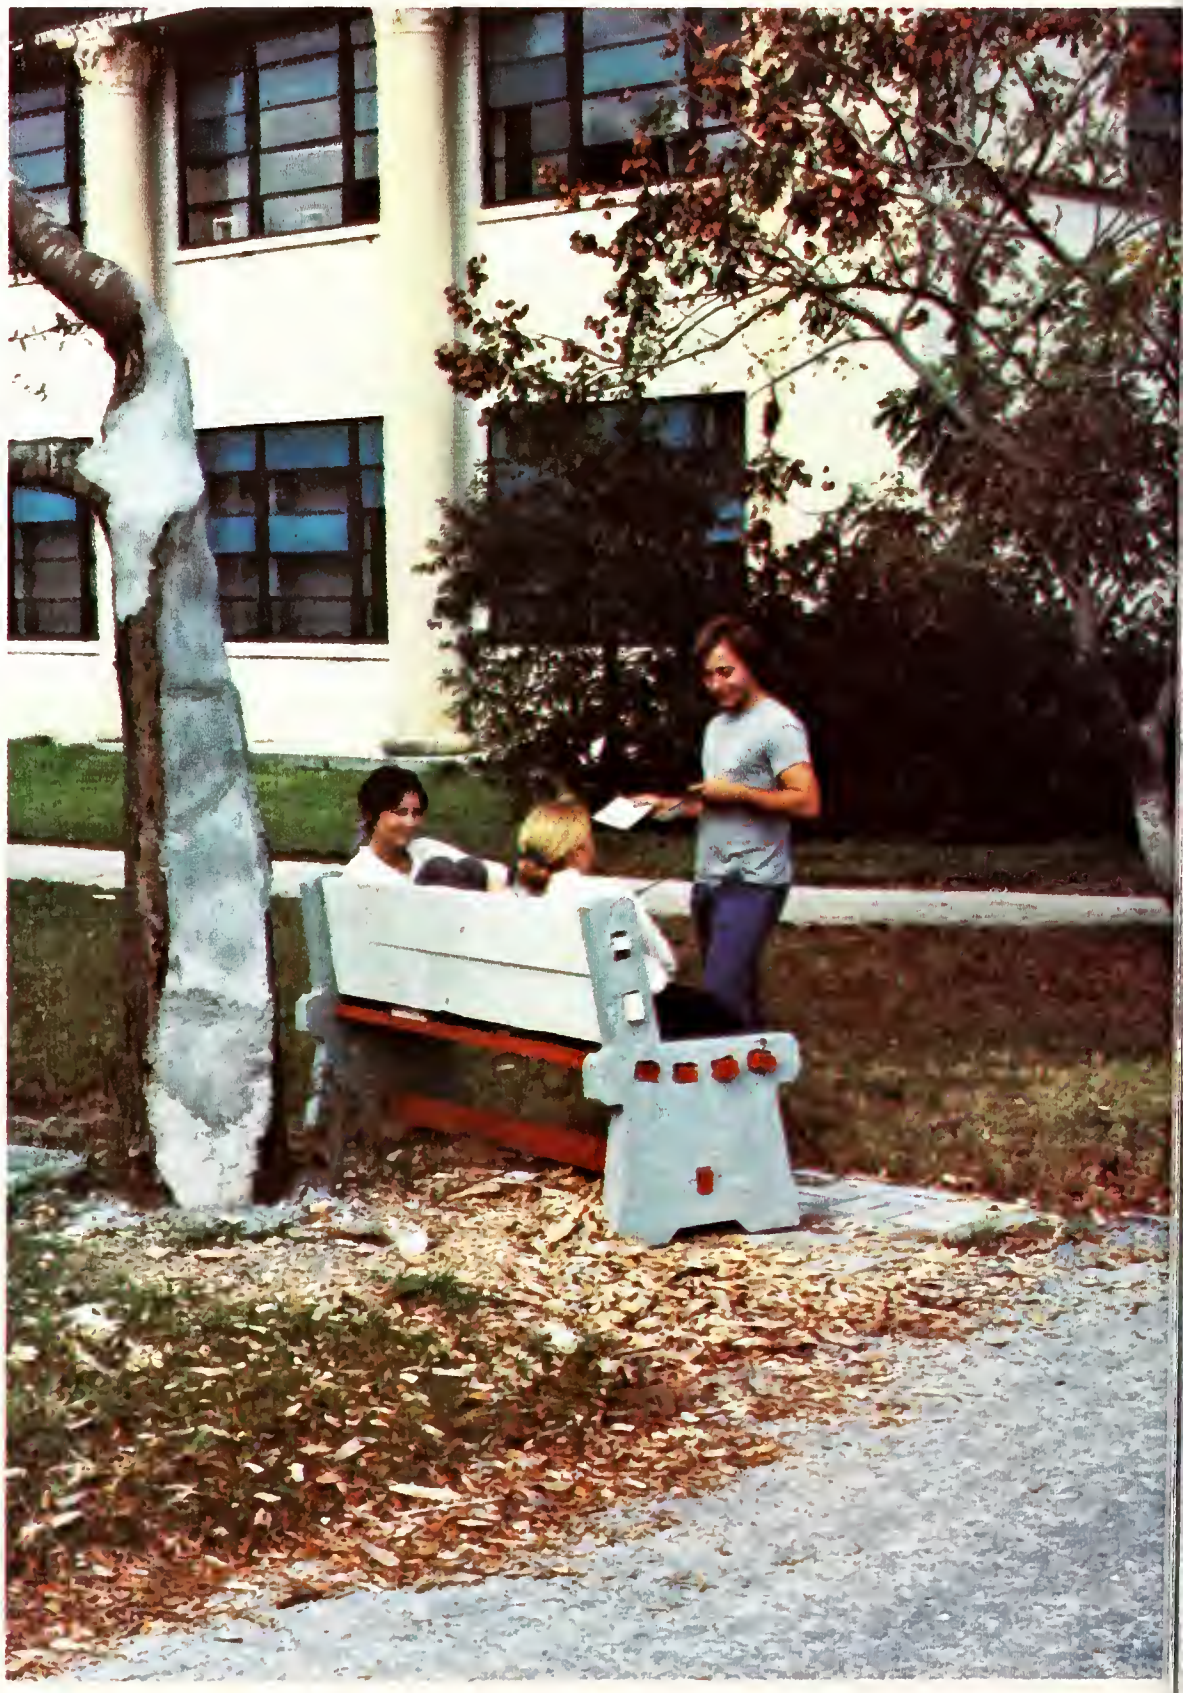
The faculty and administration is composed of highly qualified professionals. Each present a different view of life and we, the students, have the prerogative to either accept or reject these sometimes perplexing attitudes.



Budweiser



There is a certain essence that pervades the atmosphere which suits various moods. Saint Leo is a rare combination of people and surroundings that makes it our home . . .



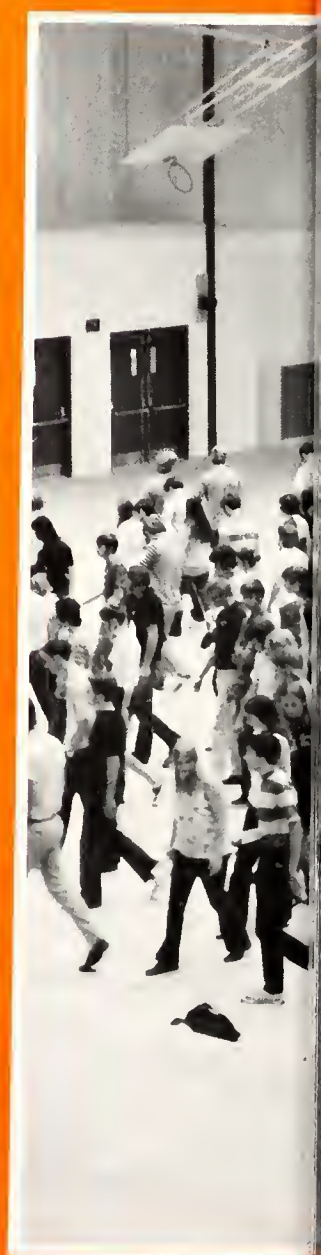
The Personality

An observation made frequently by visitors on campus is the friendliness between the students and establishment. People genuinely care and are willing to assist one another in any circumstance. Each person has an important role to play, and it takes full cooperation from all in order to make the community complete.

The Mind

A novel feature of Saint Leo is the faculty-student relationship. Students are not reduced to the level of numbers on a computer card. They are considered individuals whose opinions are respected.

Our reaccreditation was made possible through this atmosphere of students and educators working together. On December 1, 1971, Saint Leo College was reaccredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Universities with recommendation for our continually progressive programs.



The Soul

When a person is suddenly thrust into a new life, he looks at his inner self to find answers to newly formed wants and needs. Through college life the individual realizes the necessity of giving and the satisfaction of receiving. Each person is joined together through a common sharing of faith.

The Spirit

Interest in the activities surrounding a person is the essence of community life. Much energy is spent in providing competition for the individual. To retain school spirit, the individual must take up the challenge and have the courage to complete it.

Brother Bernard, O.S.B.

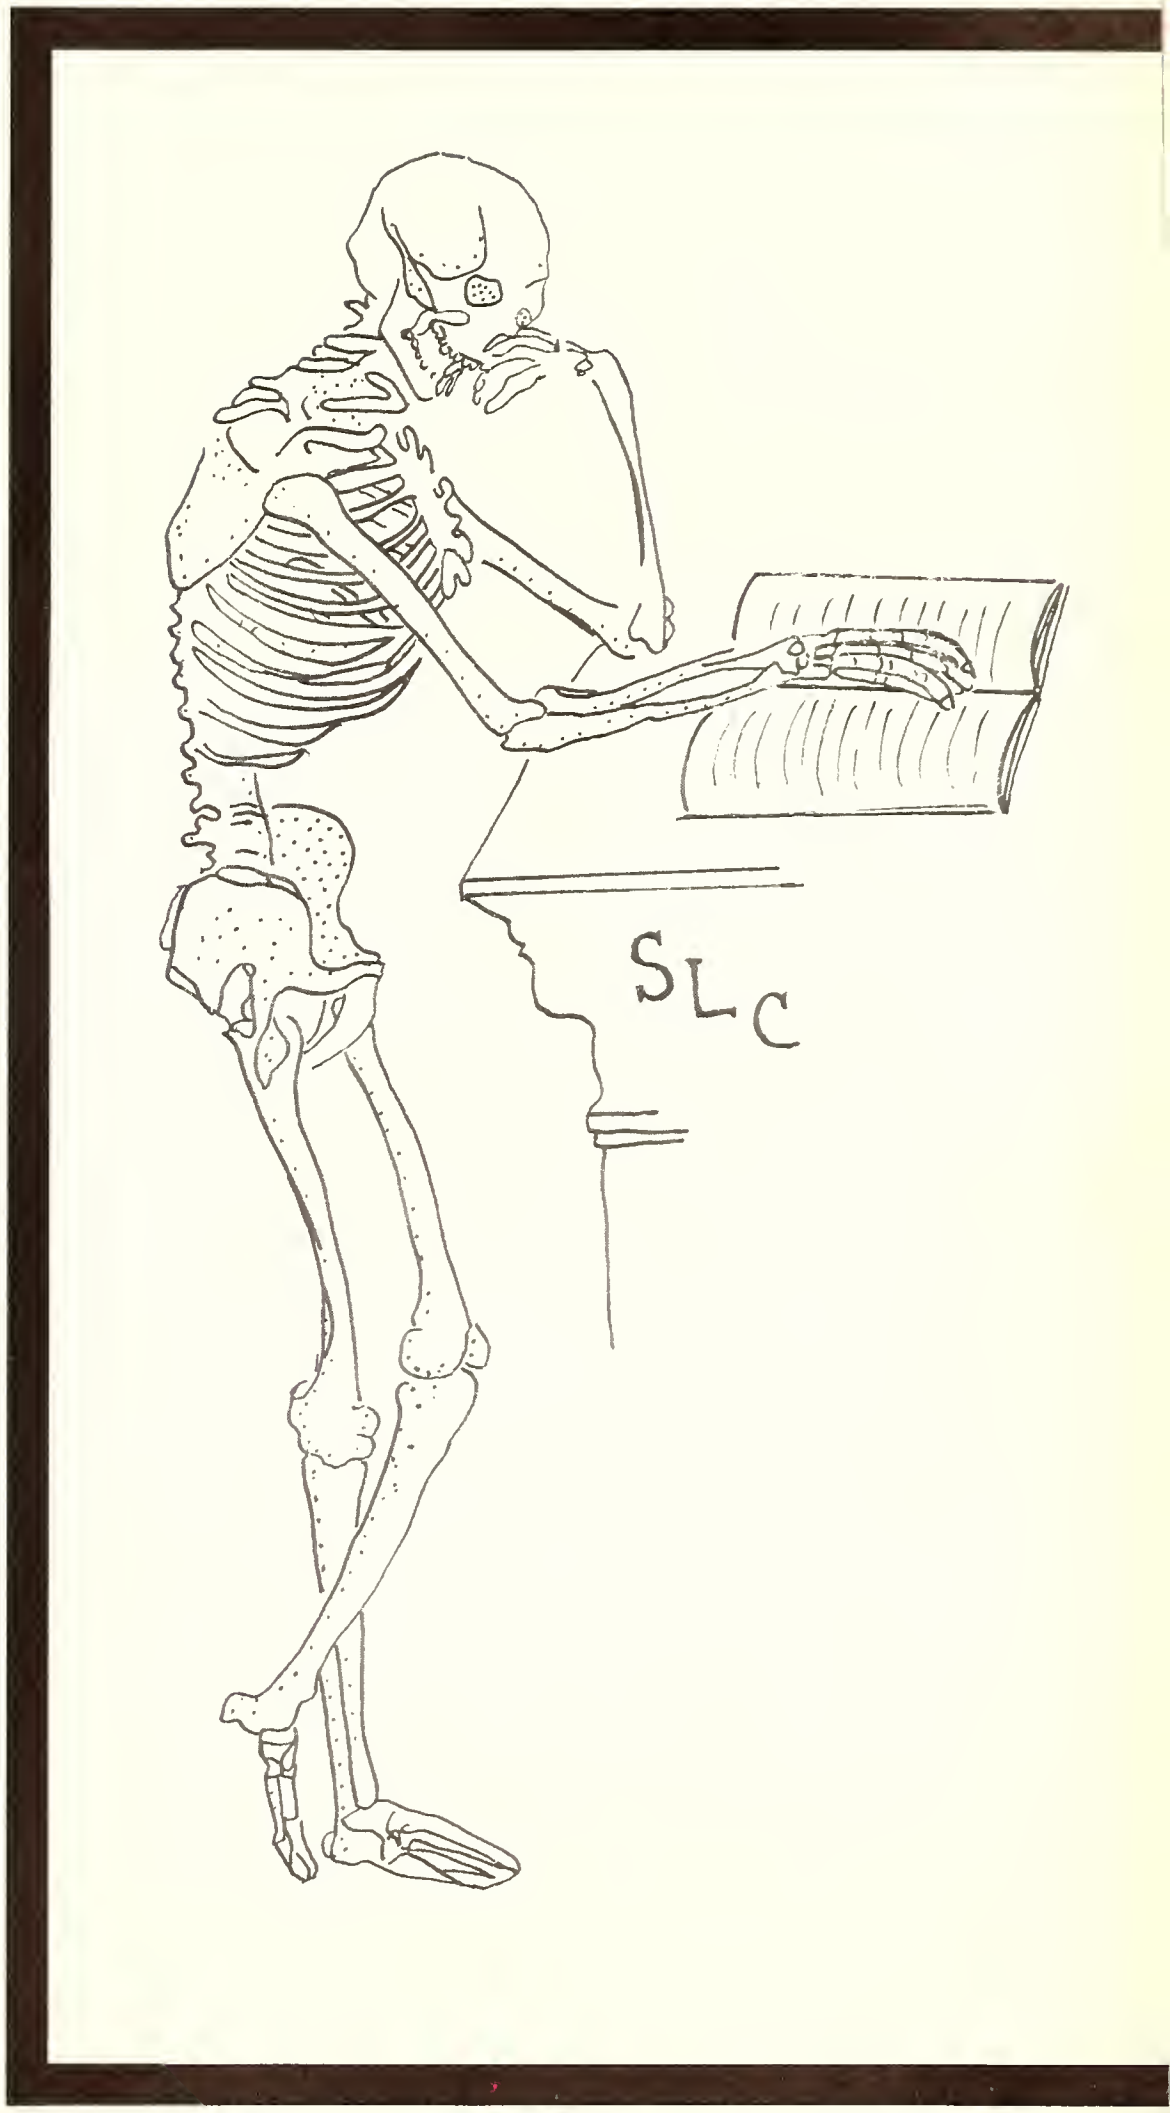
Brother Bernard discusses scuba diving with Pat Geho and Jeff Hergan.

There is a man who greets us with a big hello and a smile, bringing just a little more sunshine into our day . . . A noted poet and photographer, Brother Bernard has served in many capacities of the college . . . the one we are most familiar with is as our advisor and personal friend.

He can be found in various places on campus . . . in his office writing poems . . . grabbing students to pose for pictures . . . attending exhibitions of his work . . . developing pictures in the photo lab he has so patiently let our staff use . . . Through his encouragement and ideas, Brother Bernard has helped our publication through many deadlines . . .

We, the yearbook staff, with pride and gratitude dedicate the GOLDEN LEGEND '72 to you, Brother Bernard in deep appreciation for your devotion and especially for caring so much . . .

The Mind



Saint Leo College greeted a new administration this past fall headed by Dr. Thomas B. Southard. His past experience included being Superintendent of Pinellas County Schools and professor at the University of South Florida. We wondered what he would bring to our community.

We found a man dedicated and concerned about the present and future of the college. Dr. Southard believed in an "open door" policy which gave us the feeling that he would listen to our opinions. He was always there at college functions to support us.

His dreams and concerns appealed to the students and administration — for he is a man we are proud to have as president of Saint Leo College.

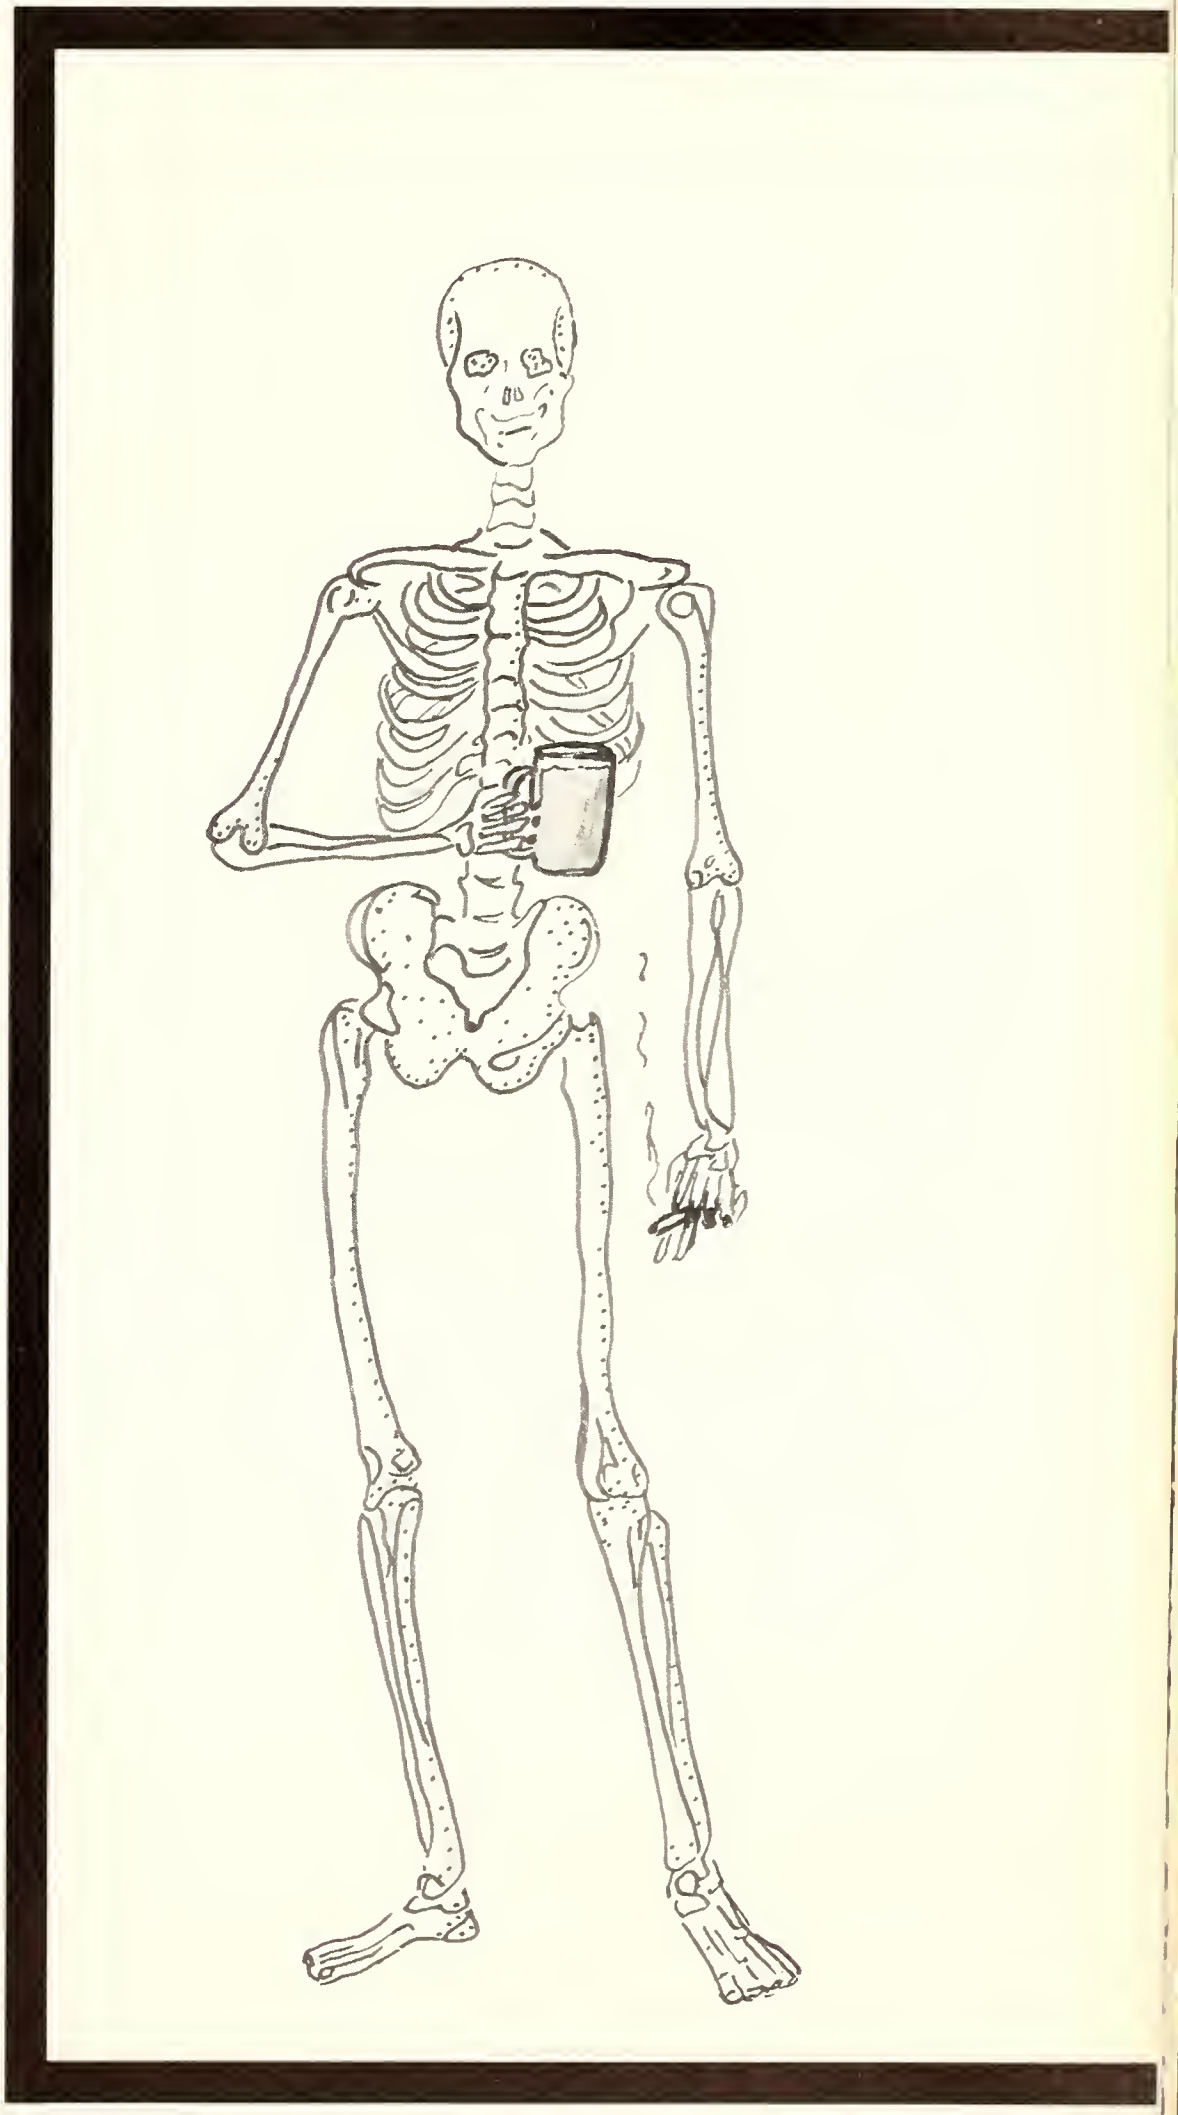
The Personality



The Impact of Brass returned again to a standing ovation performance in late September.

The first few days — home never looked so good . . . And then, we learned to try to make it with the orientation groups . . . New experiences — new faces — new sounds . . . out in the middle of nowhere, a little colony of people . . . Some first impressions made acquaintances . . . and lasting friends . . .

Wade Hopkin explains orientation to bewildered freshman.

Novelty passed into routine as October came into view. A dorm dedication gave New Residence a new name — Snyder, and Leo students flocked to Orlando for the opening of Disney World . . . with the first cool weather, the College announced its readiness for Fall. Gradually, we became accustomed to making our own life at Leo . . . And most of all, we survived, through room checks and beer bashes and empty post office boxes.

November didn't leave without a reason to be remembered. The new non-existent curfew came into effect riding on the edge of Women's Week. Our calendars bore more crossed off days as the month neared its end and finally, it was a time of Thanksgiving, something, we really began to understand the meaning of . . .

A New Year, a new Semester, and new resolutions made to be broken . . . New friendships were formed and of the old — some continued strong and others collapsed . . . there were experiences to relate, lost time to make up for and new discoveries to share . . . In January, refreshed by the winter . . . became a time of giving and getting it all together . . .

Hare Kriskna visits St. Leo.

In a hope for care packages, we kept up the correspondence. Semester break came while the Mardi Gras and "Billy Jack" met St. Leo. The Pigs and Freaks played softball in spite of the generation and communication gaps. In February, there wasn't any chance to be timid. Action and results were what we looked for and the fruits of many projects came to ripen. And February was a time of vision. Clearwater was again on our minds, while those of us who wore jackets thought of the snow . . .

With Easter came another break in the pursuit of knowledge and the beaches of Florida knew again that Saint Leo is real. March came . . . and so did the spring . . .

In ending a year, we always pretend that we have one more tomorrow still before we go. A last look at the bowl, the dock and all the other familiar places where we used to sit, think, laugh and talk with our friends . . . The president talked of new plans for the coming year and then, for the final time, we observed the work and inspirations of our fellow students in art . . . Now came the time to reminisce . . . of first impressions and lasting friendships . . .

Packing up involved stuffing anything and everything into any corner of the suitcase we could find . . . And while we packed, we thought of bits and pieces of the year — afternoon soccer games, late night-early morning conversations, the memorable "American Pie" and fire drills . . . Watching the sun dip behind Lake Jovita in the ending days of April, it was again time to go home . . .

Who Needs the Lion?

If one would be daring enough to descend the steps at the end of St. Francis, they'd enter a dank catacomb, complete with spider webs and all.

The inhabitants of this room are a multitude of ants, assorted cockroaches, crickets, and some insects not yet known to man. They scurry across damp floors, climb walls, built from blocks fallen from Jericho, and fly helter-skelter around water pipes, wires, and suspended light fixtures.

The room also serves as a storage room for a collection of unwanted furniture, among them a broken-down typewriter, rumored to be discarded by the Abbey in 1897.

The environment provides a perfect setting for many Edgar Allen Poe thrillers.

The point I'm trying to make, is that the insects, out of the kindness of their little hearts, have agreed to let the staffs of the campus publications work there, as long as they don't fix anything. We even have to type on "Ole 1897" while other offices, which type as often as the karate team, sport brand new electric typewriters.

To remain within our predestined budget, we could only publish four more issues for the remaining four months.

So what! That's our problem, right?

Wrong! That's your problem!

Just think of the organizations' social events that are announced in The Lion. The changes in student affairs, academics, and the cafeteria would be distorted through rumors, if not for our paper's reporting.

Where would our concerned parents and others voice their opinions?

A College Student's Thanksgiving

It happens every year about this time. Some priest or straight-set citizens tells us kids to remember God and all the things we must be thankful for. Each year, as I've aged, I found myself asking God for more and thanking him for less. Until now.

I can't understand the rapid metamorphosis that has enveloped me. Maybe I've mellowed at the ripe old age of nineteen. Whatever the reason, I realize that we college students, with all our complaints, have much to be thankful for.

Life at times may seem to be an endless bore, but we should thank God for giving us life to be bored with. Can you imagine what a bummer non-existence would be?

We must thank him for creating the plants and fruits, which not only add beauty to our environment, but are a necessary ingredient to our weekend rituals. Who planted the first seeds?

Thank God for our friends: the freaky kid across the hall who's always borrowing records, the alcoholic that bangs on the door at 4 a.m., and the roommate who stays awake half the night listening to you talk about the girl you almost made it with. And the chic you tell your problems to, the certain one who makes living worth it, with just a smile. What would we do without them?

And our parents who nag us about our hair, complain for not writing home enough, and send us care packages for the midnight munchies. Thank you, God, for making them exist.

And finally, thank you, God, for being God, for who would us often lost and searching college kids turn to in time of fear and loneliness?

And forgive us, God, for we ask for so much and, evidenced by our empty church, thank you for so little.

I realize we have many things to be thankful for, for without you there would be no Thanksgiving.

Peace

The Lion

Changes Are Needed!

It's not surprising that college editors are beginning to rival student governments and college presidents as the most criticized, most controversial figures on the campus. In an attempt to bring more relevancy to The Lion, we have been unjustly censured, and our experimentation, although logically conceived with the assistance of respected outside consultants, has been damned!

Our goals include broadening our scope to include national, and international events, to stand with conviction on our views, and to present to the students news in an informal, yet accurate, journalistic style. Is that so wrong?

Last issue we used four-letter words and some harsh and possibly unjust criticism in an attempt to stimulate some response from a indifferent student body. The only response received was from the targets of criticism and our egocentric campus politicians.

Some students confessed that their parents expressed some dissatisfaction with our phraseology, which was expected. However, that leaves ninety-eight per cent that either condone, accept as a reality, or mildly disapprove, realizing it's a part of life.

Kathy Died

You were supposed to see me tomorrow a time that did not come though you are gone from me
and I am here.
We had an arrangement
for me to take some portraits
of you
because you knew
I loved your lovely face
and the nice words of your mind
and all the wonderful world
of you.
Now all I can do is cry
and let the tears of my agony flow
across the world of our vision we never knew,
For I can only pray to God
that He will let all of us
see the beauty of you
In the eternity where we wait
to love you more deeply forever

Brother Bernard, O.S.B.

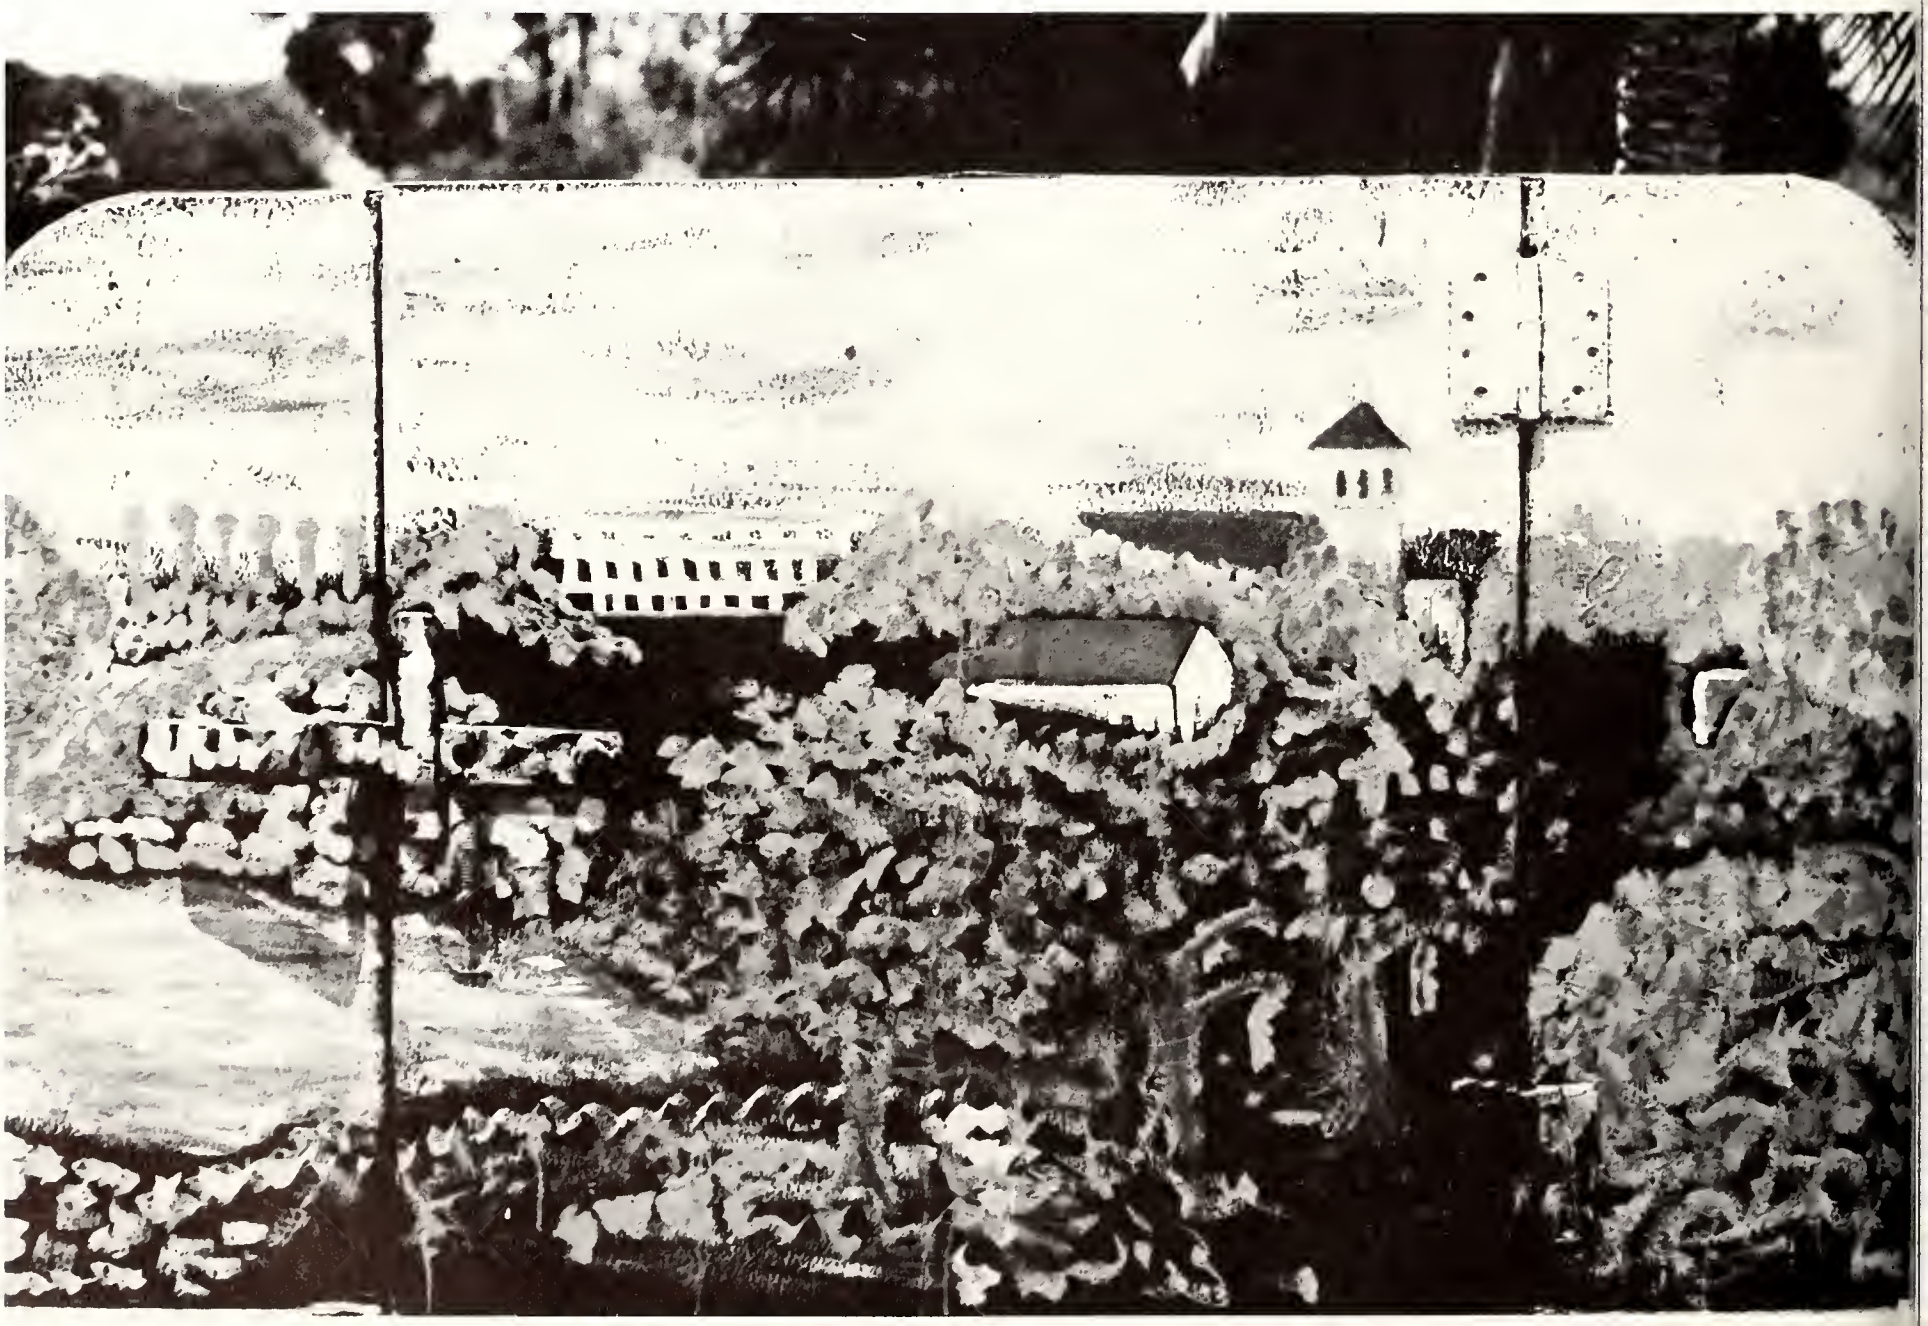
Like our body, our campus community functions, not in separate parts, but as a whole. Each year there is a constant flow of students beginning with the curious freshman and culminating finally in the wiser seniors, who arrive at a new world which was once beyond their wildest dreams.



With eyes seeking adventure, we survey new horizons and make our plans to conquer them. The art of discussion opens to us new ideas, philosophies and in making each of us an integral part of the family at Saint Leo College

Before we realize, the day arrives on which we stand on the platform and receive our diploma which becomes a passport into a sparkling new world.

We remember our experiences of the past few years spent at Leo and we at last realize what these years really meant to us and know that these have prepared us to lives as great as our expectations.

Afterword

After two years of working as editor of the GOLDEN LEGEND, it finally comes to an end for me. It was an experience which has deeply enriched my life through the experience and friends I am taking with me. There are so many people to thank — namely the yearbook staff who made meetings, worried over sections, and gave up much of their free time. Without Peter's and Kevin's photography services this edition would not contain the character it now holds. And to Brother Bernard — we made it! I thank Cathy for being the "English Expert" and taking the grief that comes with an editorial position. A hardy thanks goes to the people in the Public Relations office, especially Elma Amato for always going out of her way for us. My appreciation also goes to Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Wiseman and to Ron Binns of Taylor Publishing Company for pulling us through deadlines. A dedicated staff and friends bring you this edition of the GOLDEN LEGEND. Handle it with care for it is filled with memories of a special year in the life of Saint Leo College.

Anne N. Reynolds
GOLDEN LEGEND '72 Editor

Like the routine of life
when we become set in our domain and have established our goal
and know we will reach it Because we believe in ourselves —
this we carry away with pride.
Then all of a sudden we are gone from here.
and we have to tear from ourselves
The grass roots we have stuck into this sandy soil of our lives —
The skeleton of ourselves we brought here —
and the subtle newness of ourselves Hidden within our disturbed minds searching to be new with a new faith in our own Personality, our own spirit, soul and mind within this tearing apart of ourselves
In this leaving of ourselves
Leaving a part of ourselves as we take away
The strength of ourselves from our umbilical cord, finding ourselves in our new strength

Brother Bernard, O.S.B.

L'ENVOI

Anne
Across the eons of my mind
I have touched the new hope of you in each fresh year of you,
the blessing of you
on our college
and our benedictine family —
in the warmth of your grace and the touch of your nearness in the dedication of yourself in all the beautiful ways of your life here at St. Leo.
